Why We hold Your Personal Data

We can only process your Personal Data for a specific purpose or purposes agreed by you or, as allowed or as required by the law. This is called the Legal Basis of Processing. Once those purposes are complete we will no longer process your Personal Data.

We will only process Personal Data and allow access to it as is strictly necessary to fulfil the purposes.

Depending on the purpose, it may be necessary for us to process some Personal Data that is particularly sensitive and therefore requires greater protection and an additional Legal Basis of Processing and in most circumstances, your express permission or consent. This kind of Personal Data is called Special Category Personal Data and includes: For example, information about an individual's:

- race; ethnic origin; political allegiance; religion; trade union membership; genetics; biometrics (where used for ID purposes); health; sex life; or sexual orientation. We also treat the use of pupil images and media and Disclosure & Disbarring Checks (DBS) for our employees, volunteers and regular visiting contractors in the same way.

Again, depending on the purpose we may need to share your Personal Data with other parties so that they can process your Personal Data on our behalf. In this case we will ensure that our contract with the relevant party requires that your Personal Data is processed by them in accordance with the law. Additionally, if that party is not based within the European Economic Union we will tell you.

In other cases, we will be compelled to provide your Personal Data by law for example to law enforcement and local authorities or the Inland Revenue. In these circumstances you won't always be told but we will where we are allowed to do so.

Your Personal Data Rights

The Data Protection Legislation gives you clear rights about your Personal Data that we hold, and this includes providing you with the information in this Privacy Notice. It also gives you the following rights:

- The right to have any inaccurate or out of date Personal Data used by us corrected and therefore up to date. In this regard, it is helpful if the Data Subject informs the School as soon as possible if there has been a change, (especially in relation to contact details such as address, e-mail, telephone numbers etc.) in order that the School can ensure your Personal Data is as accurate as possible.
- Where we are relying on your consent to process your Personal Data you have the right to withdraw that consent in part or completely at any time. We will then cease (or take all necessary steps to cease) the processing immediately (or without undue delay) although there may be a lawful reason as to why this may not be possible. If this is the case we will tell you.
- The conditional right to know what Personal Data is being held by us, where it came from, for what purpose it is being used and who else might receive it. This right is known as a Data Subject Access Request or DSAR. This right is conditional because there are some limitations and exceptions prescribed by law. You should be aware that certain data is exempt from the right of access. This may include information which identifies other individuals, or information which is subject to legal professional privilege. The School is also not required to disclose any pupil examination scripts (though examiners' comments may fall to be disclosed), nor any confidential reference given by the School for the purposes of the education, training or employment of any individual. We must respond to a legitimate SAR within one calendar month. The School will be better able to respond quickly to smaller, targeted requests for information. If the request is manifestly excessive or similar to previous requests, the School may ask you to reconsider or charge a proportionate fee, but only where Data Protection Law allows it.

- The conditional right to request that we cease all or some of the processing of your Personal Data without undue delay and that we provide you with a copy of your Personal Data in a standard, portable format.
- The right to be informed if we use any automation in the processing of your Personal Data and your right to challenge any resulting decision.
- The right to lodge a complaint with the Supervisory Authority (see details below).
- If the Personal Data did not originate from you, it is likely to have come from other sources e.g. (but not limited to) current or previous Schools, current or previous employers, information we obtained when you attended or worked at the School, the Inland Revenue, references provided to us. Data provided to the School in this regard can contain not only personal data but Special Category Data for example health information.
